Snowbot Privacy Policy

The use of Snowbot ("Bot") in a server requires the collection of some specific user data ("Data"). The Data collected includes, but is not limited to Discord user ID. Use of the Bot is considered an agreement to the terms of this Policy.

Access to Data
Access to Data is only permitted to Bot's developers, and only in the scope required for the development, testing, and implementation of features for Bot. Data is not sold, provided to, or shared with any third party, except where required by law or a Terms of Service agreement. You can view the data upon request from @Snowbeard on Discord.

Storage of Data
Data may be stored in a Postgresql database. Application level encryption is utilized to protect certain fields. The database is secured to prevent external access, however no guarantee is provided and the Bot owners assume no liability for the unintentional or malicious breach of Data. In the event of unauthorized Data access, users will be notified through the Discord client application.

User Rights
At any time, you have the right to request to view the Data pertaining to your Discord account. You may submit a request through our support channel in Discord. You have the right to request the removal of your data at any point.

Underage Users
The use of the Bot is not permitted for minors under the age of 13, or under the age of legal consent for their country. This is in compliance with the Discord Terms of Service. No information will be knowingly stored from an underage user. If it is found out that a user is underage we will take all necessary action to delete the stored data.

Questions
If you have any questions or are concerned about what data might be being stored from your account contact @Snowbeard on Discord. For more information check the Discord Terms Of Service.
